Your Epic Resume Guide!

By and © Steven Savage, www.stevensavage.com
Based on the book "Epic Resume Go!" available at www.informotron.com

A resume is just like a book or a film or a show and it's promotional materials and marketing!

Personal Information: Just like information on where to get a book or see a movie! Be sure to include websites, LinkedIn profiles in more – show them how to reach you.

Opening Statement: Just like any good book or movie, a quick 1-2 sentence summary or blurb to say what you're about. Like a good blurb or catchphrase, it sets expectations!

Skills: Show what you can do. This is like a mixture of backstory and a character sheet or profile. Show your stats.

Skill Set #1	* Set of skills.
	* Set of skills.
Skill Set #2	* Set of skills.
	* Set of skills.
Skill Set #3	* Set of skills.
	* Set of skills.
Skill Set #4	* Set of skills.
	* Set of skills.
Skill Set #5	* Set of skills.
	* Set of skills.

Employment History: This is your backstory. Just like a good backstory, background, or flashback explains things, this reinforces your skills and opening statements.

Title	Employment Dates
Company	Location

What you do
        * Employment achievement – Reflects your skills and opening statement.
        * Employment achievement – Reflects your skills and opening statement.
        * Employment achievement – Reflects your skills and opening statement.

Education, Training, and Certification – "ETC" Shows what you know, how you learned, and how you grew. Also reflects your skills and your job history.

Memberships – Show what you care about and get involved in.
Publications – Shows what you've done and that you can communicate.
Hobbies – Shows who you are – and humanizes you.

These add "richness" to showing off your "character."

Finally, don't forget "promotional materials" like websites, business cards, and work samples. Like any good movie swag it makes you memorable!

Have questions? Contact me at steven@stevensavage.com or www.stevensavage.com!